This new model 65-490Z complements the existing AT 65 Series range which incorporates features and engineering advancements such as 100% waterproof premium full grain leather and Q-Flex® non-metallic penetration protection insole which is lighter and more comfortable to wear. Oliver's proprietary NANOLite® fatigue reducing footbeds offer ultimate comfort and enhance blood flow. Innovative COOLstep® moisture wicking lining draws moisture from the feet, keeping them dry and comfortable for all-day wear. Designed to be worn in the most demanding industries such as mining and oil & gas, the new 65-490Z offers a convenient side zip to enable easy release, as well as SAFETYcell® Protection, a fully integrated protective shell that offers enhanced abrasion, impact and cut resistance from harsh working conditions.

TRADITION & HISTORY - A proud tradition, founded in 1887

Oliver Footwear, Australia's leading Safety Footwear Manufacturer owes its origins to gold mining in the Victorian provincial city of Ballarat.

Our founder James Oliver, a boot-maker by trade, came to the goldfields of Ballarat, then amongst the richest alluvial and underground mining fields in the world, in the mid 1800's. His quest for the elusive nuggets was unsuccessful, so he returned to the trade of boot-making which he had learned in the U.K. Established as the business of Oliver & Stevens, the new venture commenced producing tough and durable boots for miners and farmers in 1887.

The same entrepreneurial streak which marked the establishment of the business in 1887 continues today with Oliver Footwear building on its commitment to manufacture quality footwear. Product research and development to address the needs and demands of tough workplace safety environments will always be a central part of our company philosophy.

Oliver is now part of Honeywell Industrial Safety which offers not just the world's most comprehensive lines of Personal Protective Solutions but the most respected brands that make workers embrace safety on their own.

RESPIRATORY EXPOSURE ASSESSMENT

As a safety manager, you need to ensure you're using the right respiratory protection measures and equipment. To do that, you'll first need to know the types and levels of airborne contaminants in your job site. A thorough and well-documented exposure assessment process will help you:

- Identify potential health risks to workers.
- Prioritise those risks so you can tackle the most serious first.
- Measure exposure levels to see if they're acceptable or not.
- Develop a plan to control unacceptable exposure levels.
- Keep records of exposure for communicating to workers and complying with government regulations.

EXPOSURE ASSESSMENT IS A CONTINUOUS PROCESS

DETERMINING THE ADEQUACY OF HEARING PROTECTORS

The Sound Level Conversion (SLC80) is a description of how much noise reduction was measured on a group of untrained hearing protection users who wore the HPD in a laboratory test. As the science has evolved in hearing protection, it is becoming generally recognised that the best way to ensure the adequacy of a hearing protector for any specific worker is to conduct fit testing to confirm that the expected level of attenuation is achieved (i.e., the proper type of protector was selected and is being used correctly). 3M strongly recommends the fit testing of hearing protectors on the individual wearer.

DUAL PROTECTION

Wearing earmuffs together with earplugs provides between 5-10 dB more noise reduction than either device worn by itself. The extra protection provided varies depending on the frequency of the sound.
